

TURNING OVER A NEW LEAF.

BY CLINA ARMSTRONG.

The Brownsniths were preparing to retire; the parlor clock had been wound up, the shadow garden covered with muscovies, and the sofa led to the front door hidden under the mat.

"Dear me!" cried Mrs. Brownsnith, "this is New Year's eve."

"So it is," responded her husband, "and I haven't told you how I intend to spend it."

"True, and I haven't given it a thought myself, I—my goodness! Look, listen! There is somebody under the sofa!"

"Nonsense! It's only the cat. I wish you would cultivate a little bravery."

"I will when I turn over a new leaf tomorrow," I said.

"You certainly are. And I have decided to arise early after this; I lose the best part of the day, as it is."

"True; besides, you put back all the housework."

"After all, I don't lie abed so very long."

"Indeed you do. You've often promised to rise earlier, but you never do."

"And you've often promised to be sensible and not be afraid of your shadow."

"A friend of my shadow! I'm not."

"I am!"

"Bilboles!"

They both scolded off to bed without even saying good night.

In the very early morning, Mrs. Brownsnith awoke at some sound, thought of the dining-room window—she won they might send them to her address.

She did not say anything about it to Horace, who was too much occupied with the closing business of the year to attend the bazaar, and knew nothing of this lottery feature.

She would not have him know it on any account, however, for he had been the author of chance wins, which had ruined him, and through her good influence had entirely reformed. That dangerous passion for gambling, which does so much harm in the world, had found an abiding-place with Horace Eversham, and was becoming one of the predominant influences of his life, until Alice effected a cure which she believed to be permanent.

"Your New Year's present," I hope it will be."

"Thank you very much," said Horace, his eyes sparkling with pleasure, "but I thought we were not to give each other presents this year."

"Oh, no, that's the roosey."

"Oh, no, that's the roosey."

"This cost only twenty-five cents. I won it in a chance at our church bazaar."

Horace threw back his head and laughed merrily.

"My dear little wife," he asked when he could get his breath, "do you know the difference between 'twiddle-dum and 'twiddle-dee?"

"I hope I know the difference between entertainment designed for charity under the auspices of the church and a low raffle with no other object."

"A charity, my dear; you wouldn't let me explain, but the raffle was to obtain money for the benefit of a poor family."

"Name the family," commanded Alice, who did not believe her husband

"It's feathers will make a sofa cushion," said Alice, who was a frugal maid, "I'm longing, to get recompensed for one, and not enough for two. Well have a feet if Ellen Jane does her whole duty in her cooking, won't we, though?"

"Its feathers will make a sofa cushion," said Alice, who was a frugal maid, "I'm longing, to get recompensed for one, and not enough for two. Well have a feet if Ellen Jane does her whole duty in her cooking, won't we, though?"

"It's a noble bird, and its encloing once saved Eome," remarked Horace, sentimentally, and then they went together to the kitchen, where the goose was laid on Ellen Jane's spotless white table.

Thereupon that functionary saw it, she lifted up both hands.

"Oh, it is a beauty, missis. An' what a pity that they hel to shoo so foine a bird!"

"Shoo it," echoed Alice, "well, don't they aint still crees that?"

"I'll do it, only can it's a raffle. I heared me Tom sayin' as Mr. Eversham won it—it's a folke shot he ha, I'm tol'd."

A raffle! Alice's heart went down to zero. Her husband shooting birds at a raffle! Her year of faithful present indeed!

"Where was the raffle?" she asked in a voice that she tried to make firm and indifferent.

"At Little Jake's, numm, in the back yard, where there's a big crowd of 'em," they say do Mr. Eversham was the first one cut of the lot to hit the bird, and look how late he did it—that goose, numm, never knew what killed it."

"You don't cool it," said Alice, "I done it for you."

"Just your husband, numm? He would enjoy it since he took it down with his own gun. It were banked in the snow, my Tom said, with its head sticking out an' a mayin' it as fast as a flash this way and that an' everybody that heared him."

"That will do," said Mrs. Eversham, and she walked off leaving Jane Ellen staring at the goose.

It was New Year's eve. Alice's and Horace were only a few feet apart, in reality, but miles of distance could have separated them, but he had tried to explain, but had been instantly silenced.

"No, no. There can be no explanation. You have broken a law of moral obligation. You have broken your promise to me," said Alice.

These were the first holidays since the wedding, and they had anticipated a season of quiet enjoyment with each other, and now they were hardly on speaking terms. And there was no one to blame but themselves.

It happened in this way: Alice, Mrs. Eversham, had been very anxious to make her husband, Horace, a New Year's present, but he had been restrained from prudential reasons. They were saving money to pay on a home and were exercising a rigid economy in which both were equally interested. If Horace went without cigars and other luxuries, he would not buy afternoon tea, and hired only one domestic, who worked by the day. A certain amount was reserved for charity, and as the end of the year approached and cold weather brought extra demands, this fund gave out and there were several cases of indigitation which could not be relieved, but were compelled to hand over to the charitable society of the church.

Therefore it was at Alice's own suggestion that the society got up a bazaar for the sale of contributed goods, and took the proceeds to ameliorate the conditions of their poor.

This was the beginning of the round of social calling, and when they took the things that remained unspent they put them up at a minus a cent. Alice had put her foot down.

Tap, tap, went her little foot; there were tears in her voice. Horace felt that she was criminal, yet if she only could let him explain. He was very angry.

There was a ring at the door bell. The two composed themselves to meet callers. The conventionalities of life must be observed, and no one knew that they had quarreled. But it was a very pretty foot—against proceedings, but had been overruled that it was perfectly right, and the church would be pleased to have negative consent, for all the time they buy not sell any of it.

But when one of her calls a couple of chances dressing-gown and chocolates, laughing merrily, that if "I have called," said the caption critic, "to find out what reason you give for representing the New Year as a criminal."

"That is done," retorted the art editor, "because the year does not get through till the 31st of December."

Then the caption critic went out and broke his nose new pledge.—Indians and Journals.

Thistlewood—Did he say anything to you when he handed you the bill?

Impenue—Yes; wished me a happy New Year.

Planting the Standard

All hail Columbus! Behold the great navigator as he lands. The perils of the deep are past. The clouds of fear have vanished. The night of gloom has ended. In the heavens the sun of success shines resplendent. Morning has dawned.

Imperiously the banner of haughty Spain greets the daylight. Upon its fluttering folds are inscribed the destinies of a new world. Its gleaming surface marks a long advance in the evolution of the human race. It tells a story of prophecy unparalleled, of development unapproached in the fullness of recorded time. It crowns with triumph the efforts of genius.

The World's Fair contained no finer statue of the great discoverer than this colossal figure. It commanded from its pedestal the eastern entrance to the Administration building. The majesty of its dimensions, the vigor and aggressiveness of its expression and the artistic finish of its composition made it admired as a genuine sculptural triumph.

Another Standard Proudly Displayed

at the Fair was that of

Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powder

A Standard of Excellence for Forty Years.

It was the standard of unequalled strength, perfect purity and wholesome results. The award to Dr. Price's of highest honors at the Fair furnished conclusive evidence of its superiority over all other baking powders.

A Happy New Year to all.

Mrs. Cleveland has ceased to gout, leaving him still worrying him.

Gladstone, England's "Grand Old Man," celebrated his 85th birthday Dec. 29.

What better resolution for to-day than a determination to take the KENTUCKIAN during 1896?

Mrs. Cleveland has given notice that she can't except any invitations to society events until further notice.

It was an old time Christmas after all; with snow and sleet and jingling sleigh bells and the mercury down to zero.

The amended Carlisle currency bill will be voted on Jan. 8, and Speaker Crisp says it will pass the House.

The last week of 1894 will be remembered as one in which there were no cases of sunstroke in Hopkinsville.

The Republicans are figuring it out that when they have carried Kentucky this year and again next year they will have carried it twice.

Two hundred populists from all parts of the country held a meeting in St. Louis last week and issued an address to the public and adopted a string of resolutions.

The numerous Hopkinsville friends of Chamrajendra Wadiar Bahadur, Maharaja of Mysore, will be pained to learn that he is dead. Diphtheria is given as the cause of his death, but a more probable theory is that he was choked to death in an effort to pronounce his own name.

With the assistance of a shotgun at Deadwood, S. D., Friday, Two Slaves, a Sioux Indian murderer, had his name changed to One Star.

It is calculated to knock a lecturer to have his box receipts attached, while Willis should be on his guard. This is not the first time he has been knocked by an attachment in Cincinnati.

To the long list of distinguished dead for 1894 must be added the name of Ex-Senator Jas. G. Fair, who died at San Francisco Dec. 29, leaving a fortune of $40,000,000. He was a native of Ireland and represented Nevada in the senate from 1881 to 1887 as a Democrat. He leaves one son and three daughters to inherit his immense wealth.

It is reported from Washington that First Assistant Postmaster Frank H. Jones is to marry Mrs. Nellie Grant Sartoris. Mrs. Sartoris is probably thoroughly satisfied with her experiences with a foreign husband and is willing this time to give a chance to one of her own countrymen, bearing a name much less high-sounding than that of the worthless English dud she married some fifteen years ago, while her father was in the White House.

Sim Coy, the notorious Republican politician at Indianapolis, who was kept out of the penitentiary by President Harrison's pardon, is dead.

F. C. Nunemacher has offered $500 for the Southern Magazine, minus its $7,000 of debts, and the magazine may be in a shape to shortly resume publication.

George Du Maurier has granted to A. M. Palmer the right to dramatize his new book, "Trilby." The play will be arranged by Paul M. Potter and produced in the near future.

At Silver Lake, Oregon, a horrible holocaust occurred on Christmas day. At a Christmas tree festival a lamp exploded in a room containing 125 people and 41 were killed and 15 injured in the panic that ensued.

Miss Clara Bonte entertained a number of her friends last Thursday evening at her home on South Virginia street, in honor of Miss Mamie Perlee, of Henderson, who is her guest. It proved a most pleasant affair.

Dudley C. Logan who was found shot through the head in his back yard at Lexington, was not murdered as was supposed at first. It has turned out that he committed suicide on account of heavy debts he could not pay.

Maj. L. P. Gross, the restaurant man in the Kentucky building at the World's Fair last year, who sued the commissioners for $5,000, alleging a violation of his contract, has lost his suit. Chancellor Edwards, at Louisville, has thrown the case out of court.

Mr. John Pickford has been appointed agent for the L. & N. at Casy and has taken charge of the duties of the office. Although a young man, he is old in the L. & N. service, having filled the place of agent for the company at Empire for several years and also for some time at Providence.

Last week's blizzard extended far into the South and Florida got the coldest wave on record. The mercury stood at 14 at Jacksonville and 18 as low as Tampa. Great damage to the orange crop, now about half gathered, is reported. As far down as Tennessee, the thermometer reached the zero point. It was bitter cold all over the country, and the sudden drop came as a complete surprise to those who were predicting a very mild winter.

Mr. Bailey Waller has purchased the interest of his partner, Mr. Collins, and has moved his stock of furniture into his new quarters in the old Baptist church building, recently purchased by him and remodeled especially for his occupancy. There is a decided shifting of business to the rapidly improving squares south of Ninth street, and Mr. Waller's new stand, on the corner of Main and Eleventh streets, while somewhat on the frontier, is destined to be a popular business location. The church building has been remodeled and fitted up into a three-story business house, conveniently arranged and commodious and well lighted. We congratulate Mr. Waller upon his occupancy of his own building and predict for him a greatly increased measure of prosperity during the good year of 1893.

Miss Katie McGoodwin, of Bowling Green, is visiting Miss Mario Tyler. D. Howard Smith, Jr., son of the former Auditor, dropped dead of heart disease just after taking a bath at Louisville.

Mr. A. H. Goodwin has moved to the city and will represent Mr. J. K. McLaughlin's interest in the hardware and implement house of Winfree Bros. & Co.

Col. Breckinridge made his debut as a political lecturer at Wheeling last week and the second night spoke in Cincinnati, at which place $300 of his box receipts were attached by local parties. He is booked to appear in Memphis to-morrow night and in Nashville Jan. 8.

Comet File Remedy Cure.

Among the contributors to the Century for January are Prof. William M. Sloane, Arthur Sherburne Hardy, Florence Earle Coates, Florence O'Connell, M. P., Timothy Cole, F. Marion Crawford, Noah Brooks, Katharine Lee Bates, Hiram S. Maxim, Helen Gray Cone, Richard Malcolm Johnson, Dr. Hermann M. Biggs, and others. The artists include Castaigne and Pape, whose striking illustrations of the Napoleon are attracting attention. Bacher, Metcalf, Drake, Wiles, and others, besides reproduction of Napoleon works by eminent French artists. The subjects have a wide range and include Napoleon Bonaparte, "Scenes in Canton," "The Armor of Old Japan," anecdotes of public men in Washington during war times, "Festivals in American Colleges for Women," Dutch and American art, Maxine's new flying machines, stories of Italy, England New York and Georgia, the work of women in public life, "The New Treatment of Diphtheria," the Pass Pestilence, etc. And last but not least, The Century continues to present beautiful examples of the work of American wood carvers, including Young Johnson, Tietz, Chadwick, Anderson, State, Davidson and Timothy Cole, the example of Mr. Cole's work being the beautiful "Portrait of a young girl" by Govaert Flinck.

BURIALS IN ANCIENT JAPAN.

Practices of the Old Times Which Has Been Discovered.

Prior to the year 646 A. D. the Japanese had one of the most horrible burial customs that can be imagined—that of burying the immediate friends and relatives of the deceased in a sitting position around the poten-tate's grave, and leaving them in the earth up to their necks to perish of thirst and hunger, says the St. Louis Republic. The custom cannot be said to have been general as late as the days of Emperor Sujin (14-50), but proofs that in the time of the Emperor Sujin (97-30 B. C.) the burial rites of royal personages were so modified as to partially abolish former practices. Speaking of a young brother of Sujin, who died before his return from a distant campaign, his friends and relatives say: "For many days they did not eat, but wept and cried aloud. At last they died. Dogs and crows assembled and ate off their heads. The emperor's compassion was aroused and he desired to change the custom, but he could not do so until he had died soon after the massacre [inquiry] of his officers if something in the way of a change could not be suggested, and one proposed to make clay figures of men and bury them as substitutes."

That this did not entirely do away with the old custom is proved by an edict issued in the year 646 A. D. (the date given first above), which forbade the burial of living persons around the graves of noted persons and provided a penalty for further adherence to the awful rite.

TOOK THE OATH ABRAD.

William Rufus King, Who Was Buried With Franklin Pierce.

William Rufus King (born April 6, 1799; died April 12, 1853) was a prominent man in the United States who never served in that capacity, and one who took the oath of office on foreign soil—something which can be said of no other executive officer elected by the people of this country. King was an invalid, says the St. Louis Republic, and his friends induced him to take second place on the ticket with Pierce in 1852.

Both were elected, but Mr. King's health failed so rapidly that he was forced to go to Cuba early in 1853, two and a half months before inauguration day. He had given a speech at the United States consul at Matanzas, Cuba, to swear him in as vice president at the hour when Pierce was taking the oath of office at Washington.

This arrangement was carried out to the letter, and on the day preceding his departure he was given a plantation on one of the highest hills of Matanzas. Mr. King was made vice president of the United States and the solemn "Vaya con Dios" (God will be with you) of the crew who had assembled to witness the unique speech.

Very President King returned to his home at Cahaba, Ala., arriving at that place on April 17, 1853, and died on the following day. His remains were laid to rest on a plantation known as "Pine Hill."

KNOWLEDGE

Brings comfort and improvement and adds personal enjoyment when rightly used. The man who lives better than others and enjoys life more, with less expenditure, by more promptly adapting the world's best products to the needs of physical being, will attest to the value of the pure liquid laxative principles embodied in the remedy, Syrup of Figs.

Its excellence is due to its presenting in the form most acceptable and pleasant to the taste, the refining of trite, common practice of a violent laxative; effectually cleansing the system dispelling colds, chills and fevers and permanently curing constipation. It has given satisfaction to millions and met with the approval of the medical profession, and acts on the Kidneys, Liver and Bowels without weakening them and it is perfectly free from every objectionable substance.

Syrup of Figs is $1 bottle, but it is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only, whose name is printed on every package, also the name, Syrup of Figs, and being well informed, you will not accept any substitute if offered.

WHAT THE DOCTOR SAYS
ABOUT A GREAT REMEDY.I take pleasure in stating that I have used Royal Germaner extensively in my practice, and have found it is nearly a sure remedy for all diseases, especially rheumatism.It is an excellent remedy for weak and debilitated women I think it is a wonderful remedy for all diseases.It is prompt relief for piles, cuts, bruises and varicose veins. With my family it is a wonderful remedy.

Weather Forecasts.

For the next three or four days the temperature will rise slightly, and rain may be expected with some snow further north. By Saturday or Sunday another storm wave is due and much rain and snow is down on the bill for this period, followed by a very cold wave, lasting several days. There will be much snow in this month and a great deal of stormy weather, with rain, sleet and snow may be expected to sandwich along. Our readers will be kept posted as to the date of the rigid wave predicted as they approach.

Mr. Henderson Wade is visiting his daughter, Mrs. W. H. Harton, at Cave Springs, in Logan county.

Miss Florence Buchanan and Kate Breathitt spent Christmas week with Miss Maggie Bradshaw, of the Pembroke neighborhood.

Mr. Jno. L. Brasher will leave this week for a tour of his territory in the interest of his old house, Chas. Rakow & Co., Louisville. Mr. Brasher's territory is Illinois and a portion of this state.

Miss Lillie B. Price, of this city, left yesterday for Atlanta, Ga., where she goes to accept a position as stenographer with the Grant Hotel at that place. Miss Price taught school in this city for quite a while, and is an excellent lad in every respect. She will be greatly missed by her many friends here.

TEETH.

Dr. HALEY is in town.

Owing to the bad weather of the past week Dr. Haley will be at the Phoenix hotel this week and will extract teeth by his well-known processes, provided there is work enough to keep him engag'd. Dint we tell the ladies of the Doctor's day

TRADE CIRCUMSTANCES.

JOHN CARTER.—Last Friday at the Franklin House, Clarksville, Mr. J. Jobe and Miss Bettie Carter, both of Bonnettsontown, this county, were united in marriage, Rev. J. C. Tate officiating. They were accompanied by Mr. Fenton Dawson and Miss Sallie Dawson. Immediately after the ceremony they partook of dinner and shortly afterwards left over the Mineral road for Beef Range, Tenn., on a week's visit to the groom's mother. Mr. Jobe conducts a blacksmith and wheelwright shop at Bonnettsontown, and is also postmaster at that place. He is a very popular gentleman and makes an excellent official. His bride is a young lady of many admirable traits and is held in high esteem by many friends.

PARNELL HOGGARTH.—Capt. Jas. S. Parrish, of Clarksville, was married to Mrs. H. C. Houghton of Brooklyn, Friday. The happy event took place at the home of the bride in Brooklyn. Captain Parrish is well known in this country and is a very popular gentleman. His bride is a prominent stockholder in the publishing house of Houghton, Mifflin & Co., Brooklyn, and is a highly cultured and elegant lady.

COOPER-BURNET.—Mr. J. A. Cooper, of Uniontown, head of the stemming department of the Barrett tobacco company, was married Wednesday evening in the Catholic parsonage to Miss Lucy Buren, formerly of Meade county. They are popular young people.

SHEPHERD-NEWMAN.—Mr. C. G. Shepherd and Miss Lonia Newman were united in marriage last Thursday at the home of Mr. R. B. Johnson, near Casy.

A MEMBER OF THE FAMILY.

so the Britisher Considers the Newspaper of His Choice.

Peter Collier, writing in the Forum, says that the newspaper is a member of the family in England, and regularly comes to breakfast with the other members. The London Times is a kind of oldest son amongst newspapers, and Punch, the jolly bachelor uncle, who makes occasional visits. Englishmen have a great fondness for reading and have a half way of writing to them on all sorts of subjects. If an Englishman rows down the Thames and stops for luncheon at an inn and is overcharged, he writes to his newspaper, just as a little boy runs in to complain of the unkind treatment of his playmate, and later on this first letter is followed by others in which the comparative merits and cost of light luncheons on the continent, in Serengapatam, in Kanachastha, and everywhere else where Englishmen have eaten, are discussed. They do not stop there—they discuss it again. If horses stumble and fall in Rotten Row there are letters on the subject which go into the matter of road building, modern horsemanship, and the like, with quotations from Virgil and of accidents that happened half a century ago. There have been many letters concerning the lynching of negroes in our southern states, and here again John Bull, with his ponderous disregard of the fact that he knows nothing at first hand, does not shrink from his duty as far as his superficial comprehension. Not only the more serious weekly, but also the daily newspapers give one the impression that they feel themselves to some extent responsible for the contemporary auditing of the day's happenings. On the other hand the Britisher English newspaper, not indulge in such supercilious hasty generalizations, uncertain guesses at probable future happenings, and the daily exploitation of the personal affairs of notorious nobodies. And one need hardly say, it is difficult to imagine this is probably true.

Balfour, for example, were to go abroad for a holiday, it would be considered vulgar to chronicle his doings and dinnings, and absolutely brutal and boorish to write particulars of the dress and behavior of his sister—or of his wife, if he had one. The spirit of fair play of a nation of sportsmen does not permit an editor to torment even his enemy from behind a woman's petticoat.

A DRAMATISTS WIT.

Was Perfectly at Home with His Interior.

When Collier, the British dramatist, was examined before the committee of the house of common, which sat on the theatrical question, he was asked whether he expunged all oaths or profane swearing from the plays submitted to his revision. He answered:

"I did not, but I dare say there are a great many."

"Which you disapprove of?"

"Undoubtedly."

"I do not think it would have been better to have omitted them."

"Nimble. They disfigure the scenes in which they are introduced, and injure the humor."

"Then," concluded the chairman, thinking to clinch the argument, "you do not think that you wrote either of those samples?"

"Quite the contrary," rejoined the honoree; "I rejoice exceedingly to have made a good padding, although I regret that any bad plays should have

A WELL-LAI PLAN.

Young Mr. Taylor was going over his New Year's accounts. His countess betrayed a fact he would never confess to Angelina—that love in a cottage is much more expensive on paper bearing the head word of grocer or butcher, than on the one, on which the couple paid their bills.

Angelina, perfectly aware of this fact, had considerably left the room; when the bills were put away she returned.

"Algeron," she said, "we really must make some New Year's gifts."

"But, dear, we really must economize."

"But see what a splendid place I've derived. You know we received some lovely things when we were married!"

"Mostly useless ones, though."

"The more suitable for presents. Well, I've decided to—you'll never guess—use some of them for New Year's gifts."

"What a head you have! But you must be careful."

"I will. I remember just who gave each one."

"Let's do them up at once, then."

"This hindrance is case was from Dow; it is too limp to use, so I'll give it to you."

"I will. I remember just who gave each one."
